Claims 1 to 15 are pending.

Priority

1. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Specification

2. The title of the invention is not adequately descriptive. A new title is required that is more clearly indicative of the invention to which the claims are directed by making reference to the wiring member supported portion being fixed to the load beam base section.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

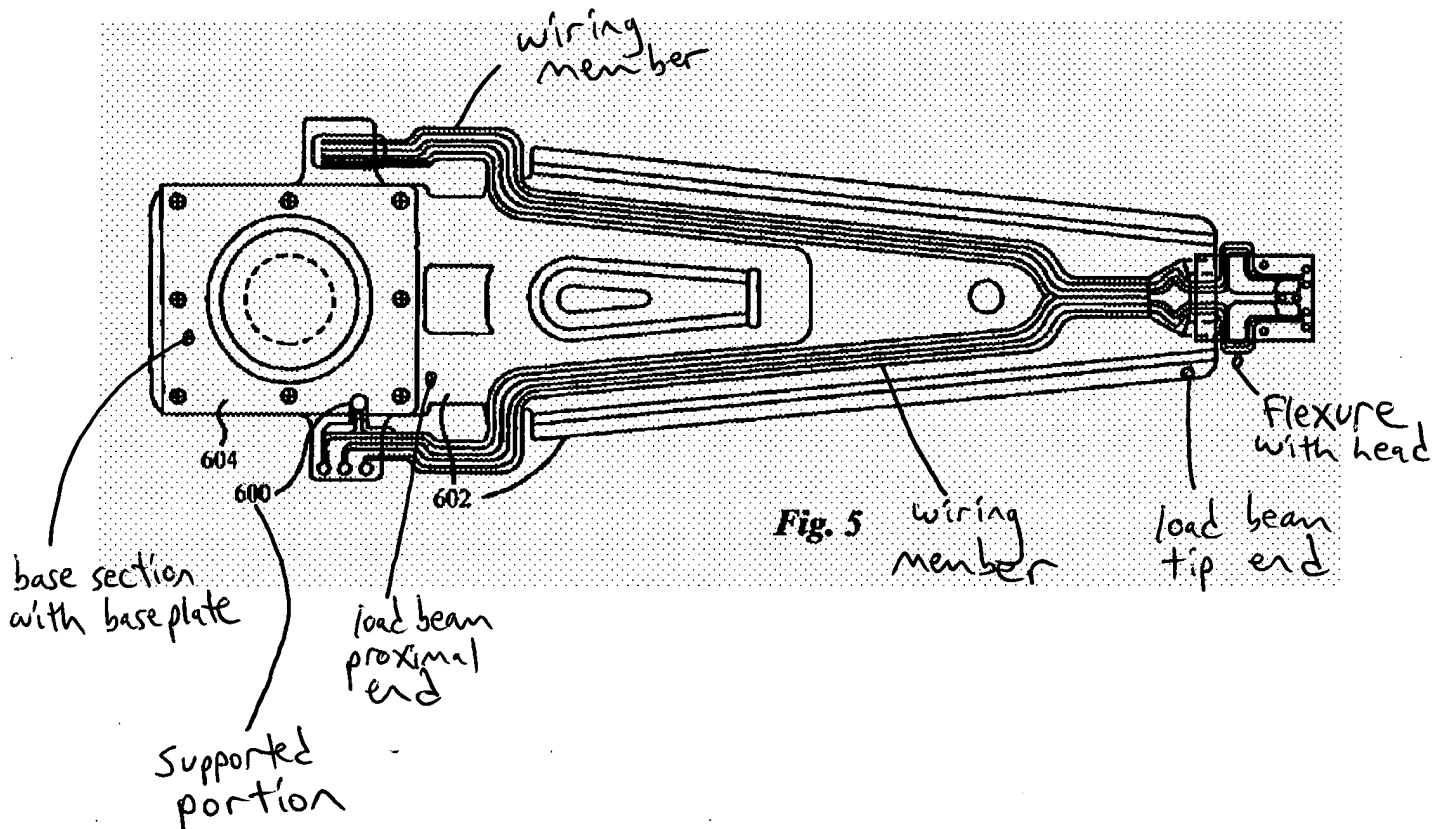

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. Claims 1, 2, and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Cowles et al (U.S. 6,700,748). Note figure 5 which follows and has been labeled to show the elements in the figure that correspond to the claimed elements. Note that the term lapped has been interpreted as “made to overlap with”. As to claim 4, the supported portion being formed on part of the metal base does not require that the supported portion has to be formed as part of the metal base layer but could be formed from a layer on the metal base, which is the case with Cowles where the supported portion is formed from a copper layer which is formed on a polyimide layer which in turn is formed on the metal base.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 1, 2, 8, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Budde et al (U.S. 6,728,073) in view of Himes et al (U.S. 6,704,157). Budde in figure 4 depicts a wiring member 92 that extends from a flexure 44 along a load beam 42 and through a hinge section 55 before extending along a periphery of a base section 56 which includes a base plate. The wiring member is depicted as having a tab that extends over a part of the base section towards to angled rectangular structures but the tab and rectangular structures are not labeled or described.

Himes, which shares an assignee and inventor with Budde indicates that the rectangular structures 240,242 are piezoelectric microactuators.

It would have been obvious that the tab depicted in figure 4 of Budde would have read on the claimed wiring member supported portion. The motivation would have been: the tab being connected to the base portion of Budde to allow the wiring member to have a mechanical and/or electrical connection to the microactuators would have resulted in the tab also serving to support the wiring member on the base portion.

Allowable Subject Matter

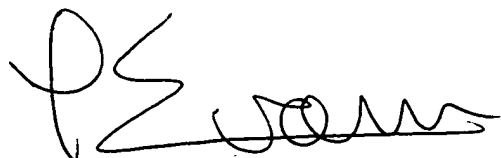

7. Claims 9 to 15 are allowed. Claim 3 and 5-7 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

8. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Jefferson A. Evans whose telephone number is 571-272-7574. The examiner can normally be reached on Monday to Friday, 9:00am to 5:30pm.
